Introduction to Evolved Packet Core: Protocols and Procedures

With the advent of new narrowband LTE-M and NB-IoT technologies, LTE has become recognized as the low power, wide area (LPWA) technology best suited to support the massive Internet of Things.

Introduction: Enabling Global Deployment of LTE IoT

In telecommunication, Long-Term Evolution (LTE) is a standard for high-speed wireless communication for mobile devices and data terminals, based on the GSM/EDGE and UMTS/HSPA technologies. It increases the capacity and speed using a different radio interface together with core network improvements. The standard is developed by the 3GPP (3rd Generation Partnership Project) and is specified in ...

LTE Advanced is a mobile communication standard and a major enhancement of the Long Term Evolution (LTE) standard. It was formally submitted as a candidate 4G to ITU-T in late 2009 as meeting the requirements of the IMT-Advanced standard, and was standardized by the 3rd Generation Partnership Project in March 2011 as 3GPP Release 10.

Data Link Layer (Layer Two) LTE is a complex collection of protocol specifications that define how the network functions. In general, there are two types of traffic: control traffic and user traffic. Control traffic organizes how the user traffic is sent and received, whereas the user traffic is the actual payload, e.g., the content of the visited website.
