Networks. It has been demonstrated that a neural network can approximate any continuous function. Neural networks have been successfully used for forecasting of financial data series. The classical methods used for time series prediction like Box-Jenkins, ARMA or ARIMA assumes that there is a linear relationship between inputs and outputs.

TIME SERIES FORECASTING USING NEURAL NETWORKS

Attention mechanism, we propose a novel dual-stage attention-based recurrent neural network (DA-RNN) to perform time series prediction. In the first stage, we develop a new attention mechanism to adaptively extract the relevant driving series at each time step by referring to the previous encoder hidden state.

Combined Neural Networks for Time Series Analysis 225 We study the analysis of time series, where the problem is to predict the next element on the basis of previous elements of the series.

Neural Networks are able to capture the underlying pattern or autocorrelation structure within a time series even when the underlying law governing the system is unknown or too complex to describe.

Neural networks perform best when used for (1) monthly and quarterly time series, (2) discontinuous series, and (3) forecasts that are several periods out on the forecast horizon.
